City/county tourism divided over restaurant tax

By Shelley Spillman
News Editor

City of Lawrenceburg Mayor Edwinna Baker and Anderson County Judge Executive John Wayne Conway have been in recent negotiations for a joint city county tourism commission.

Negotiations broke down last week over lack of agreement on the possibility of a restaurant tax.

In an interview Thursday, Conway said he's not in favor of a restaurant tax, and he could not support a joint city and county tourism effort if it meant pursuing a restaurant tax.

"People don't want to pay higher taxes in this economy, and fiscal court is not for it," said Conway.

He said in a meeting on Wednesday Mayor Baker presented the possible revenue a restaurant tax could generate as $190,000-195,000. He said combining the motel tax and possible restaurant tax revenue could result in around $218,000 annually for a joint city and county tourism commission.

Conway said he never got a straight answer on what would be promoted with the additional tax revenue and that made him hesitant to proceed.

He said during his term he's tried to be very mindful about raising taxes.

"I'm responsible for the constituents of this county," he said.

Baker said in an interview Monday that she is not for or against a restaurant tax, but felt it was prudent to put all the options on the table and examine them.

She said she had hoped for a possible round table discussion with the city and county where they could

School district honors several retirees

Possibility of middle school after-school program discussed

By Shelley Spillman

Laughs and memories were shared at a banquet to honor 20 retiring Anderson County Schools' employees for their service at board of education meeting Monday of last week.

Combined these 20 employees had more than 357 years of service to Anderson County students. Retiring employees were invited to a dinner and received a lamp for 14 years of service and under or a personalized rocking chair for 15 years and more of service.

Expenses were approved and a concerned parent asked the board to consider the possibility of an after-school program at the middle school.

Sean Alteri, father of an 11-year-old at the middle school, said the idea of his daughter being home alone for a couple of hours until he got home from work makes him feel uncomfortable.

Alteri said since middle school library has undergone several recent renovations and contains

Three arrested in liquor store robbery

By Shelley Spillman
News Editor

According to the Kentucky State Police, Joseph "Blake" Penny, of Lawrenceburg, a third suspect identified in the Go Big Blue Liquor store armed robbery on July 10, was arrested and charged with first degree robbery Wednesday of last week.

Dathan K. Spalding, 21, and Cody R. Baker, 20, both of Lawrenceburg, were arrested at the scene and also charged with first-degree robbery.

According to court documents, Penny was identified as a subject of interest in KSP's investigation.

Penny reportedly advised that he was the black male involved with the crime identified in a blue sweatshirt, and he identified his compliances.

Spalding, Baker and Penny are all currently lodged at the Shelby County Detention Center.

NEARLY READY TO GO

With 20 days to go, work is going around the clock at outlet mall

By Ashley Wilkins
Landmark News Service

With less than three weeks until opening day for The Outlet Shoppes of the Bluegrass, construction workers on the property are hard at work.

The 365,000-square-foot retail center located just south of Interstate 64 in Simpsonville is scheduled for a VIP opening on July 30 and the grand opening July 31.

"This shopping center is a hundred percent leased. That is very rare, and we couldn't be more excited," said Gina Slechta, Vice President of Marketing for Horizon Group Properties.

And while many stores look empty, Slechta assures that the nearly all the stores will be ready to open on time.

"I have watched stores literally transform in a 24-hour-period," she said. "What this shopping center looks like today will be totally different tomorrow. You can imagine twelve hundred workers and what they can do in one day. It's amazing," she said.

While the majority of the stores will be ready on time, Slechta said she expects a small handful - mostly the newest lessees - won't make it on time.

"We think that [there will] probably be a few stores that leased in the end that won't make the grand opening day, they're on a big push to open as fast as they can," she said.

Slechta said she expects only four stores may not be ready: Tumi, a luxury luggage company, Toys 'R Us, Kate Spade and Gucci.

"This is one of seven shopping centers in the United States that will have a Gucci store, right here in Kentucky," Slechta said.

Proposed sign ordinance stalled

City approved first reading, but fiscal court did not

By Shelley Spillman
News Editor

The new city, county and chamber of commerce sign ordinance efforts came to a screeching halt when the fiscal court failed to approved the first reading Tuesday of last week.

The old sign ordinances have been criticized for being too vague and far too open for interpretation. A committee was put together to revise the old sign ordinances, which made the former five-page sign ordinance to a 30-page document designed to be more clear and concise.

Fiscal court made two changes to the ordinance last week. They learn from other cities that have passed a restaurant tax. She said she knew Harrodsburg and Winchester had passed them and experienced success, and the city and county could benefit from hearing the pros and cons of a restaurant tax from cities that have gone through the process.

Baker said those options have been taken off the table because Conway refused to even entertain the idea of a restaurant tax.

"I don't think a joint city and county tourism commission will happen at this point in time," said Baker.

Even if a restaurant tax is a possibility, Baker said it's a burden strictly on the city council since only the city can pass a restaurant tax.

"I've heard others say a restaurant tax revitalized their downtown," said Baker. "I believe in tourism. I believe it will help downtown. Tourism is economic development."

Though Baker acknowledged that reaping the rewards of tourism typically takes more than five years to implement a program that works, she said now is a great time to start to take advantage of the great things Lawrenceburg has including the bourbon trail, bungee jumping and their affiliation with the film industry.

"$23,000 the county generates from the hotel tax isn't enough to promote tourism," she said. "If the city passed even a two percent restaurant tax, I don't think anyone would even notice."

Baker said from here, the city council will most likely look at the budget to decide if it's feasible to hire their own director to represent city tourism to pursue their own tourism efforts separate from the county, or the other option is to let it go at the moment and possibly revisit it a later date.

changed a portion of the Off-site freestanding sign/billboards sections to clearly outline that no more than four billboards are permitted at the U.S. 127/Bluegrass Parkway Interchange area and only four billboards are permitted at Exit 48 of the Bluegrass Parkway Interchange Area. Prior, the ordinance stated that a total of eight billboards for each side to be permitted, but the magistrates were concerned that may be interpreted as eight signs on each side and not four on each side for a total of eight billboards.

Fiscal court also amended the section five of the Off-site freestanding signs/billboards section to remove the language "and purchase of usage rights" from the following sentence "Anderson County Fiscal Court shall exercise final authority as related to the establishment and purchase of usage rights, fees and administrative processes for billboards."

When the first reading came to vote, half of the fiscal court magistrates approved the first reading of the sign ordinances while the other half did not approve the ordinance, making the vote fail.

The Lawrenceburg City Council unanimously approved the first reading of new sign ordinances in their regular session Monday of last week.

"The council felt like it was a very good ordinance," said Mayor Edwinna Baker. "The council felt that the committee worked very hard on the ordinances and wanted to show their support."

Anderson County Judge Executive John Wayne Conway said he thinks the first reading of the ordinance failed because some of the magistrates feel the new sign ordinances have too much local government regulation. He said it's a big change to go from a five-page document to a 30-page document.

Conway said he expects the first reading to come up again in the near future.

Time is of the essence, fiscal court has 90 days to approve the ordinances or it goes back to the planning commission. Since this is a joint city and county venture, it cannot move forward until both parties approve the sign ordinance.

But for the most part, Slechta said everything will be ready by their grand opening.

"This time next week...the construction crews that will be doing the finishing up touches [will be here]. And we'll start having the employees and people coming in and stocking,"

Construction also is underway in the area dubbed living room, located adjacent to the food court, which will contain a gas fireplace, a fountain and a patio area.

"Every direction that you look there's something to make you feel comfortable," Slechta said.

In addition to the installation of comfortable settings, Slechta said there are also plans to place statuettes of Louisville Slugger baseball bats and plaques around a corridor where many sports apparel stores are located. Slechta said the bats and plaques are similar to the ones located in downtown Louisville.

"We're going to put a little bit of flavor of Kentucky in this area," she said.

And there's plenty of flavor to enjoy while shopping at the outlet.

More than retail therapy

Culvers, which is nearly complete and Bob Evans, which has not started construction are restaurants that will be located on-site, surrounding the parameter of the outlet.

There are also food areas scattered throughout the shopping center and three fast-food restaurants in the food court.

But you will find more than just things to eat in the food court. There is a stroller and wheelchair rental, as well as children's play area.

At guest service, also located within the food court, AAA members can pick up a free coupon book. For those who are not members, books can be purchased for $5 each with the proceeds of those coupon book sales going to a good cause.

new hands-on learning opportunities, it'd be a great place to house an after-school program. He also noted that studies show that students who spend more time in school typically improve on their test scores as evidence of the usefulness of an after-school program.

According to Anderson County Schools Superintendent Sheila Mitchell, currently, after-school programs have been implemented at Robert B. Turner Elementary, Saffell Street Elementary and Emma B. Ward Elementary and the Early Childhood Center. Anderson County High School Daycare, a child care option for babies and infants of students attending ACHS, is also housed at Emma B. Ward Elementary.

Mitchell said they would investigate opportunities for the middle school after-school program to combine with a preexisting program at one of the other schools or create a new after school program for middle school students at the middle school.

"We'll see what direction the board wants to go and look for opportunities," said Mitchell.

In other news, the board of education also approved the following purchases:

10 computers to be surplus and replaced with $20 refurbished computers containing an operating system for a total of $200.

Smart Temps Food monitoring system renewal at all 7 school sites for $21,000.

KSBA custom eMeeting services for $5,235.

CRS Substitute Finder System $9,110 to place substitute teachers in the absence of a teacher.

Anderson County Community Education funding for $33,123 and an additional $5,000 for the local Board Match to qualify for a state grant.

Looking to save money, try homemade laundry detergent

I wouldn't call myself crafty in any sense of the word. I'm terrible at gift wrapping. I know that when my husband and I have children we will most likely have to get our presents wrapped or else the kids will discover "gee, Santa wraps presents like mom," and after watching numerous demonstrations and YouTube videos, I still cannot successfully tie a tie.

That being said, there is something somewhat crafty I do that's actually a lot easier than it sounds. I make my own laundry detergent. It saves a good chunk of money and it's very effective. All the ingredients cost around $36 and makes about three gallons of concentrated laundry soap that will last for months.

I discovered this homemade laundry detergent recipe while working for the Glasgow Daily Times in Glasgow, Ky. I made a challenge to try Martha Stewart like tasks and chronicle my success or in some cases lack thereof.

I made homemade truffles for holiday candy to disburse to relatives, but the laundry detergent was by far my greatest experiment.

I got my recipe from howdoesshe.com, which called for:

- 1 (4 lb 12 oz) Box of Borax
- 1 (3 lb 7 oz) Box of Arm & Hammer Super Washing Soda
- 1 (3 lb) Container of OxyClean
- 2 (14.1 oz) Bars of Zote Soap or Fels Naptha
- 1 (4 lb) Box of Arm & Hammer Baking Soda
- 2 Bottles of Purex Crystals Fabric Enhancer

- *Mix all the ingredients in a five gallon bucket
- *Use 1-3 tablespoons, depending on the size of load

Most of the ingredients are already in powder form; all you have to do is mix it all together. All of these ingredients can be found in the laundry detergent/household cleaners section of the grocery store. The Zote or Fels Naptha, depending on which one is more easily found, is the only hard part because the recipe requires you to grate the soap.

You can grate the soap in one of the two ways, the overly difficult method where you hand grate it over a cheese grater, or you can put it in the microwave for about a minute and crumble up the pieces after it cools and expands. Personally, I always grated the soap. I feel like you can control the size of the soap pieces better this way, but yes, it is the harder way.

I find it's easiest to grab a big mixing bowl to place ingredients in and layer it in the five gallon like the sand art you made as kid. Otherwise, mixing everything together is a real chore.

You'll only need about one tablespoon for a small, delicate load and up to three tablespoons if you're like me and push your washer to the limit. If you find white streaks on some of your clothing, you're using too much. The white streaks on clothing are easily remedied by using an extra rinse and spin cycle. Play around with the amounts and find what works best for you. I'm told this recipe also works for high efficiency washers because it does not get very sudsy.

This cleans very well since it has OxyClean, Arm & Hammer and Borax, but it's a lot more concentrated than normal laundry detergent. Since there are several scents of Purex crystals, I like to swap out and try different scents each time I make it.

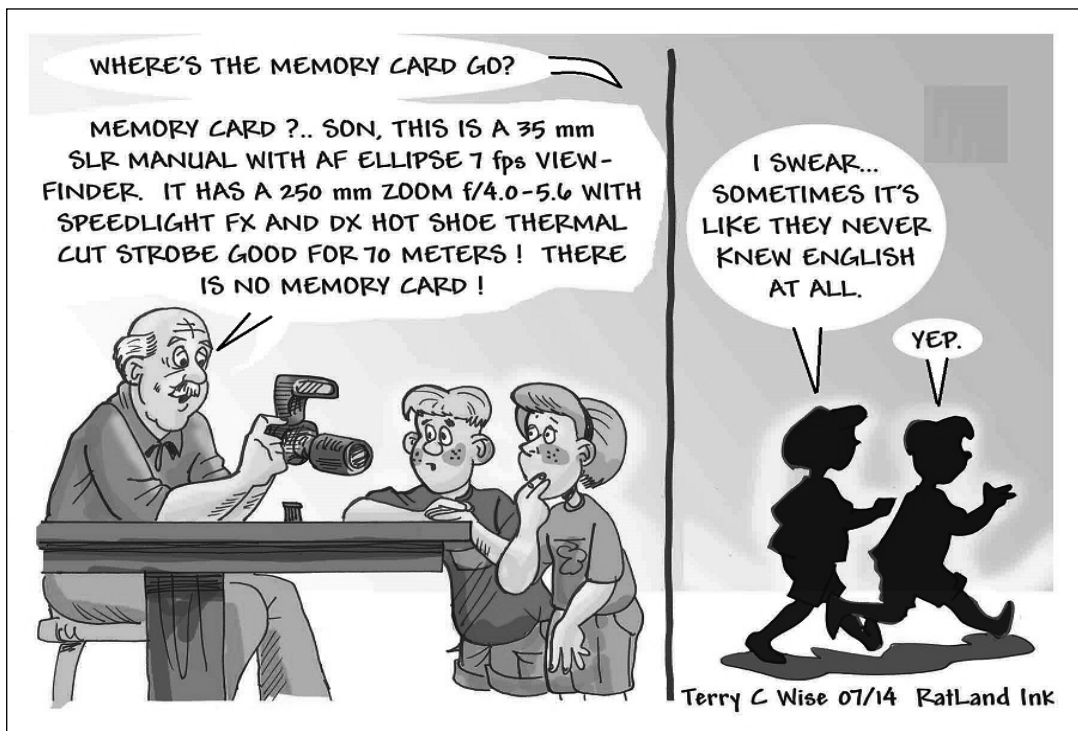

I only have to make this twice a year. Compare that to average brand name laundry detergent that costs around $17 for their largest size that's good for up to 96 loads.

It's definitely worth a try. Of all the changes going on this world, it sure doesn't seem like anything is getting any cheaper.

Let me know how this works for you, and if, you too, are a homemade laundry detergent convert.

Two-spotted spider mites can be formidable pests

The two-spotted spider mite (TSSM) is a common and destructive pest with an extremely wide host range that includes many trees, shrubs, flowers, weeds, fruits, and vegetable crops. Problems increase during hot, dry weather but early signs and symptoms are easy to overlook. Not only are these mites tiny but they live out of sight on the underside of leaves (Figure 1).

TSSM use needle-like mouthparts to remove the contents of individual cells as they feed. There are no holes in the leaves; just tiny pinprick spots caused by emptied cells (Figure 2). This causes infested leaves to gradually lose color and appear to be suffering from drought stress.

An infestation typically starts at the bottom of the plant. TSSM-damaged leaves lose water and photosynthetic capability. As mite numbers increase, infested areas of leaves change from gray-green, to yellow, to coppery brown and drop. As leaf quality drops, the mite infestation moves upward.

Weather and natural enemies usually keep TSSM populations at acceptable levels. Very dry conditions upset the balance and mite populations can explode. Drought stress triggers TSSM to leave grass or other hosts where they had been living.

Improved food quality of other hosts due to higher nutritional content of sap.

Reduced effectiveness of fungal diseases that attack mites. These diseases are favored by cool temperatures and high humidity.

TSSM development is more rapid at higher temperatures.

Homeowner options for TSSM control are limited to insecticidal soaps and horticultural oils. These require direct contact so thorough plant coverage is required, along with repeated applications.

Spider Mites on Vegetables

Reports of TSSM activity on vegetable crops has increased over the past couple of weeks, particularly on tomatoes and beans. As populations get larger, webbing may become apparent between leaves and other plant parts (Figure 3). The mites can be seen with a hand lens so producers should confirm active populations if they see foliar damage.

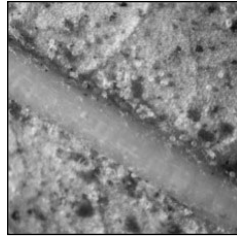

Monitoring and Management

Growers should be monitoring for spider mites and mite damage at least on a weekly basis, particularly during hot, dry weather. Greenhouses and high tunnels are more likely to have spider mites than the field since the hot, dry conditions within tunnels promote more rapid development of mite populations. While mites can attack a wide variety of vegetable plants, tomatoes, beans, watermelons, and eggplant are among those most commonly affected by spider mites.

Commercial growers have a number of miticides available to control mites; these are listed in Vegetable Production Guide for Commercial Growers (ID-36). Some of the materials are only used as miticides, while Brigade and Danitol are pyrethroids that are insecticides and they are miticides at high rates.

Water your plants generously; prepare for harvest time

It's a good thing man invented hoses. Otherwise, I think our gardens would be filled with dehydrated everything. This is the time of year when Mother Nature decides to take a little siesta from doing the watering for us.

If I ever win the lottery, I swear I'm going to have everything laser leveled and bermed so I can flood irrigate. It's so much more efficient in time and effort. Our plants appreciate a good long drink way more than a few sips. Frequent light waterings lead to shallow roots.

As if we didn't have enough to do already in the garden, now we need to add bug control to our watering, weeding and harvesting. I'm knocking on wood here, but I haven't had any bug issues in the vegetable garden this year. My flowers are a different matter.

Something is loving my hibiscus! I've got little holes all through my leaves. Every time I look, I can't find a thing. Guess I'll just break out the smelly onion and garlic spray and hope for the best. The Japanese beetles seemed to favor one climbing rose bush this year, but they've been light enough to just pick off and destroy.

Mid to late July is also the time to gather some free flowers, if you've got a shovel. You can dig and divide your iris and day lilies now. The more crowded they get, the less they bloom, so give them some space.

You can put them in buckets of soil and keep them moist on the porch, if you'd like to trade with friends. You may also find a few different varieties to try at the farmer's market, but those won't be free. If you've got friends or neighbors with varieties you'd like, now is the time to do a little bartering.

Even though I just planted my late tomatoes and beans, I did leave space for a few fall plants.

I'm picking up some broccoli, cauliflower and cabbage plants to fill in that space. As the weather cools, fall plants thrive and the bugs don't seem so hungry. When harvest time does come around I can both eat fresh and freeze for winter.

I can't believe I'm already talking about fall! I don't like to even think of that "W" word. I have noticed sunset coming just a few minutes earlier. Instead of setting at 9:08 p.m., now it's setting at 9 p.m. It's just enough to help me remember to fully enjoy each and every day of summer!

Now get out there and take care of those lawns and gardens. Raise the mower blade and sharpen the pruners. Fill your baskets and heat up the kitchen. The harvest is on! Happy Growing!

Centre's good offer for Grimes, McConnell debate

Kentucky New Era, Hopkinsville

An offer Thursday from Centre College to host a debate between Kentucky's U.S. Senate candidates — incumbent Republican Mitch McConnell and Democratic challenger Alison Lundergan Grimes — ought to light fire under the question of whether these two can agree on debate terms.

They should debate.

So far, though, Grimes and McConnell have not come to terms.

Essentially, each accuses the other of political maneuvering on the details of when, where and how to debate.

A voter might assume they don't actually want to debate. A voter might assume that both are looking for every way possible to blame the other for not debating.

While respecting each campaign's obvious interest in making the best possible deal in a debate agreement, we want to remind them that debates are for voters.

Previously, McConnell accepted an offer to debate on Louisville's WDRB television station. Grimes would not accept because the station's president has supported McConnell with on-air editorials.

Grimes accepted Kentucky Educational Television's offer to host a debate, but McConnell's campaign responded that Grimes' team was attempting to use press releases to jockey back and forth on debate proposals.

Centre President John Roush announced the college's offer with two sponsors, AARP and WAVE3 News, a Louisville station that has set up a network of stations around Kentucky that would show the debate live. WAVE3 anchors Scott Reynolds and Shannon Cogan would moderate the debate.

Neither campaign immediately accepted the offer.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

World Lung Cancer Day is Aug. 1

Please mark your calendar for Aug. 1, 2014, the 3rd annual World Lung Cancer Day!

Join in to celebrate, commemorate and support all those affected by the "No. 1 cancer killer."

Lung cancer, often referred to as the "Invisible Disease", is generally asymptomatic and often goes undetected or misdiagnosed, while advancing to a late incurable stage. Only 15 percent of patients diagnosed in the late stages will survive five years.

Although early detection screening has been a topic of great concern and study, the guidelines established by the American Cancer Society, continue to leave a large percent of the population ineligible for screening. Anyone can get lung cancer.

Widely portrayed and publicized as a "Smoker's Disease," over 60 percent of newly diagnosed patients are never smokers or quit years ago. An increasing amount of young non-smoking women are being diagnosed. Anyone with lungs can get lung cancer.

Lung cancer is the No. 1 cancer killer in the U.S., claiming 160,000 lives annually. This is nearly 10 times the amount of lives lost to AIDS (18,000 annually). Lung cancer claims more lives than breast, colon, kidney, and melanoma cancers combined.

This year, lung cancer will kill twice as many women as breast cancer.

Lung cancer receives less research funding (per death) than any other type of cancer.

Radon, asbestos, diesel, poor air quality, environmental pollutants, chemical toxicity, occupational exposures, genetics, are all known factors that contribute to causing lung cancer. Anyone that breathes, can get lung cancer.

The first question most lung cancer patients are asked is "Did you smoke?" The public perception that lung cancer is a smoker's disease, the "blame-the-victim" mentality and the overall stigma attached to this disease, far too often denies lung cancer patients the support and compassion afforded other cancers and major diseases.

Lung cancer patients face the same physical, emotional and financial hardships as any other cancer. They battle the same fears, depression, losses and grueling treatments. Yet those battling receive minimal recognition and support from our society. Lung Cancer is bad-Its victims are not. Like AIDS, alcoholism, obesity, drug abuse and a myriad of diseases that can be "rooted in causes," lung cancer patients and caregivers deserve support, not shame and blame.

In honor of all the people that have been lost to this disease, care for affected loved ones and to those that continue to fight with courage and dignity, we ask you to join in and show support and compassion to the often neglected, but no less deserving, fighters of this lethal cancer.

New CAL Headmaster brings experience and energy

From staff reports

The Christian Academy of Lawrenceburg announces the hiring of a new headmaster, Jason Gribbins.

Gribbins, a recent military retiree, is a native of Marion County. He holds an ED.S Education Specialist/Leadership from Liberty University as well as a Master of Arts in Christian Leadership from Liberty Baptist Theological Seminary. He also holds an MBA from Touro University. While serving in the U.S. Marine Corps, Gribbins obtained the ranking of Master Sergeant and worked in a wide variety of educational leadership positions both within the United States and overseas.

Positions have included the Senior Administrator for the Communications Electronics School and an adjunct professor at Ashford University. He has also worked in executive level management and human resource management.

Gribbins has a passion for Christian education and believes his unique experiences and skills set will work well at the Christian Academy of Lawrenceburg.

"CAL has a good foundation. It's been blessed with its own building," Gribbins says. "Right now, my goal is to grow the school, not just in numbers but in influence within the community. Our students are our best advertisement."

Gribbins also holds a personal stake in the school. He and his wife, Christine, are the proud parents of three young children Mason 7, Jacob 4, and Emma, 2, and Gribbins says that what he wants for them is what he wants for every CAL student.

"I want every CAL graduate to be Biblically-rooted, academically prepared, globally minded, and equipped to serve."

The family is thrilled to be back in the Bluegrass, and CAL is equally delighted to have them. "I am confident that Mr. Gribbins' energy, Bibli-

OBITUARIES

ROBERT JEFFREY 'JEFF' GRUBBS, 44

Robert Jeffrey "Jeff" Grubbs, 44, of Lawrenceburg died July 17, 2014 at Rockcastle Regional Hospital in Mt. Vernon, Ky.

Grubbs

Born Dec. 3, 1969 in Louisville, he was the son of David Grubbs and Mary Sue Cheek Howard, both of Anderson County.

Jeff was a former truck driver for Mago Construction. Known as the "Shade Tree Mechanic" he enjoyed working on cars and riding his motorcycle.

Besides his parents, Jeff is survived by his wife of 24 years, Danetta Reeder Grubbs; a daughter, Daneka Brooke Grubbs; a brother, Keith (Laura Kathleen) Grubbs; a niece, Ashlie Grubbs, all of Anderson County and several great nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were Tuesday, July 22 at Ritchie & Peach Funeral Home. Bro. Charles Long, Bro. F.D. Robinson, Jr., and Josh Stansbury officiated.

Memorials are suggested to The ALS Association.

CORRECTIONS & CLARIFICATIONS

Because of an error in the arrest warrant, a story published last week about a robbery at Go Big Blue Liquors contained incorrect information.

Cody R. Baker was not the individual holding the gun.

An article about Anderson County's booth at the state fair contained some incorrect information.

The Anderson County Chamber of Commerce is raising the funds for the state fair booth. The State Fair Committee is coordinating the efforts. The Anderson County Tourism Commission agreed to donate $2,500 toward the booth.

Happy birthday

Mabel Cartinhour was in town getting ‘prettied up’ to celebrate her 100th birthday. She had said in a story in The Anderson News the year before “that she got a kick out of watching some old man play billiards on the sports station.” “I like to watch baseball now, but Bill (grandson Bill Cartinhour) turns off the television every time he comes. I tell him I was enjoying that and he say’s I’ll turn it on when I leave,” laughed the personable lady.

It didn’t get away

Larry Shelton was pictured holding a five-pound large mouth black bass he caught at Green River Lake in Campbellsville. The 9-year-old son of Paul and Renee Shelton used crank bait to land the big fish.

Camping

Cub scouts from Anderson County and leaders taking part in a week of camping at East Frankfort Park were: Jared Conn, Jonathan Sutherland, Chad Clark, Jarrod Blake-man, Jamey Disponett, Charlie Washington, David Cartinhour, Steven Forbes, Marvin Harvey and Anthony Sutherland. Leaders were: Mary Schram, Denise Kincaid, Delores Snel-len, Barbara Sutherland, and Marilyn Prophet.

The "lost" distilleries of Anderson County at T.B. Ripy Mansion
The Attic Visitor Center and Gift Shop at the Historic T.B. Ripy House (320 South Main Street) presents its first in a series of exhibits featuring the "lost" distilleries of Anderson County opening with "Old Joe."

"Old Joe" is (Joseph) Peyton who started the first distillery proper in Anderson County in 1818, making old Joe one of, the longest living Bourbon labels. Old Joe Bourbon Whiskey was produced in Anderson County from 1818 through the early 1970's at several locations (the trademark is now held by Heaven Hill Distilleries). The exhibit will include historical items including bottles, jugs, photos and more. The exhibit is free, donations are welcome, and open to the public. It will run from July 18 through Nov. 16. The exhibit is open 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

For more information contact Thomas Ripy at 502-517-1029 or by email at ripyattic@gmail.com.

Paden named in Harding University dean's list

From staff reports

Lawrenceburg resident Erin Paden, a senior at Harding University, is among more than 1,200 University students included on the dean's list for grades achieved during the spring 2014 semester. The dean's list is published each semester by Dr. Larry Long, University provost, honoring those who have achieved high scholarship. To be eligible, a student must be carrying 12 or more hours with a 3.65 or higher grade-point average and no incompletes.

Harding is the largest private university in Arkansas with 6,295 students. The University also maintains campuses in Australia, Chile, England, France, Greece, Italy and Zambia. For more information visit www.harding.edu.

ROBOTS TAKE OVER THE LIBRARY

As part of this year's STEM based Summer Reading at the Anderson Public Library, students and their families could showcase imagination and inventiveness by entering the Robot Building contest. Participants demonstrated their creativity and ingenuity by building robots out of recycled materials of all kinds ranging from a remote control car to repurposed kitchen gadgets, aluminum foil to bubble wrap and sparkly headbands to pajamas. One winning family will be chosen by random drawing to win an iPad.

Message of good news results in peace with God

When we open the paper, turn on the television, or turn up the radio there is a common outcome; more often than not, what we read, see, or hear is bad news. After all, bad news is big business. We often buy magazines because of the scandal advertised on the cover; we “stay tuned” often out of an innate curiosity about the calamities of others.

We do this because all of humanity, by means of our own sin, is part of the bad news. We write our own headline every day with our actions and our attitudes that are antithetical to God and his Word. We have we become ostracized from God because of our sin. He is holy and righteous and thus has an aversion to sin. This resulted in a great gulf between us and our Creator; and our headline reads: “GUILTY AS CHARGED.”

But there's good news! In fact, that is what the word “gospel” means – “good news!” It's the good news is that we don't have to be separated from God forever. We don't have to bear the weight and punishment for our sin; we can have peace with God and live in the light of his perfect, unending love.

Brian Owens
Faith columnist

The good news is that God our Creator didn't exercise his right to do away with us after we sinned against him. He could have sent us to hell right then and would have been perfectly just in doing so; but instead he sent his one and only Son to save a sinful, rebellious people.

The good news is that his Son was the perfect human he requires us to be. Although tempted in every way as we are, he was without sin. Perfect in his humanity he could be a substitute for our sin; perfect in deity he could be the perfect sacrifice for our sin.

The good news is that when he died on the cross, he actually accomplished something. He didn't just make salvation possible; he secured salvation for all who would ever trust him by faith alone as Savior and Lord. When he cried out “It is finished,” he meant it.

The good news is that although he died, he didn't remain in the grave. Three days after his death God the Father showed his approval with the sacrifice of his Son by raising him from the dead. He defeated death so we can have life!

The good news is also that he is coming again. There will come a day when he will come to execute perfect justice and judge all who have rejected his free offer of salvation. On that day “every knee will bow and every tongue will confess that Jesus Christ is Lord...”

The good news is that all you have to do to have peace with God is believe with your heart that Christ is alive and confess with your mouth that Jesus is Lord (Romans 10:9-10). Repent of your sins and believe the Gospel (Mark 1:14). Salvation cannot be earned; it's the free gift of God in Christ (Ephesians 2:8-10).

The late Carl F.H. Henry once said, “The gospel is only good news if it gets there on time.” I would add to this statement, “and if it's believed.” If you are trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ alone for salvation, apart from any faith in your own effort, it is indeed great news; if not, well, simply put, it's going to be bad news for you. Which will it be?

PLEASE INVESTIGATE THE CHURCH OF CHRIST

You can read about it in the New Testament – Romans 16:16

It uses no creed but the Bible and no name but that of Christ – I Peter 4:16; Acts 11:26

It speaks where the Bible speaks and is silent where the Bible is silent – I Peter 4:11; Galatians 1:8-9

It exalts Christ as the only head of the church – Colossians 1:18

Its worship is patterned after New Testament example – John 4:24; Acts 2:42; 20:7; I Corinthians 16:2; Ephesians 5:19

It teaches unity based upon the truth of Christ – John 17:21; I Corinthians 1:10; Ephesians 4:3

It pleads for unity of all believers in Christ – I Corinthians 3:1-5; Ephesians 4:4-6

Its founder is Christ. It is not a denomination started by men, but is the body of Christ – Matthew 16:18; Ephesians 1:22-23

Its aim is to save souls by leading them to Christ through the gospel – I Corinthians 15:1-4 of this, we are one of their few corporate sponsors...all of our proceeds from the sales of those coupon books goes 100 percent into research," Slechta said.

VIP night

On July 30, the night before the Grand Opening, the outlets will host a pre-view night. VIP passes for admission are $50 per person and include $300 worth of coupons, with the funds going to support the James Graham Brown Cancer Research Center.

And while the outlets are providing funding for research throughout the country, they are also providing income for more than 1,000 locals.

Slechta said the center will employ about 1,500 on average and nearly 2,100 people during peak seasons. But not all employees will work in retail. In addition to operation and housekeeping positions, Slechta said The Outlet Shoppes of the Bluegrass will also employ bus drivers.

"We have our own shuttle and the shuttle is used to go back and forth to hotels and tourist sites [in Louisville and Lexington] to pick up customers that don't have transportation and bring them to the shopping center," she said. "The number two thing people do on vacation is shop," she said.

Construction continues at The Outlet Shoppes of the Bluegrass both inside and out. Gina Slechta, vice president of marketing for Horizon Group Properties, said all but three or four stores will be ready for opening day on July 21.

Slechta said they work very closely with hotels and will know when groups and conventions are coming into town, explaining that they will provide a free shuttle service for large groups.

"If it's a group, they can call us up and make a reservation," she said.

Those shuttles will also be put into good use on opening day.

"We'll have shuttles going back and forth for [those parked in] spaces surrounding the property," she said.

"As far as parking is concerned, we have made arrangements for the property to have three thousand, one hundred parking spaces -additional parking spaces at the property- we have parking areas that are over at the flea market and across the road, we got...two thousand, one hundred and fifty parking spaces that are actually here at the property, we will be bussing all of our employees off of the property for Grand Opening weekend, so we'll keep all of those spaces clear," she said.

And it would seem every one of those spots will be occupied on opening day with the number of visitors expected to top 20,000.

"We typically have anywhere between [twenty thousand] and forty thousand people that will come to the shopping center on the first day," she said.

Cigarette smoking among Kentucky high school students drops significantly

Kentucky Press News Service

Kentucky dropped to sixth place among surveyed states in 2013 for high school cigarette use, a significant improvement from the state's first place ranking in 2011, according to a recently released Centers for Disease Control Youth Risk Behavior Surveillance System report.

Survey results show that 17.9 percent of Kentucky high school students report current cigarette smoking, down from 24.1 percent in 2011. Nationwide, the rate is 15.7 percent. The marked drop means Kentucky has met its Healthy Kentuckians 2020 goal of reducing youth smoking to 19 percent, and is beginning to creep toward its kyhealthnow goal of reducing Kentucky's smoking rate by 10 percent in the next five years.

In 1997, when the CDC first started tracking student smoking, the rate was 47 percent.

"When I announced our ambitious goals for kyhealthnow in February of this year, smoking was one of the most obvious areas we needed to address," Gov. Steve Beshear said in a statement. "I am pleased to see teen smoking trending downward, but I remain committed to further reducing cigarette use among our youth."

Reducing smoking among young people is a key component of kyhealthnow, which includes priorities for comprehensive smoke-free policies and 100 percent tobacco-free schools.

According to information collected by the Department for Public Health, 33 of Kentucky's 173 public school districts are currently 100 percent tobacco-free.

With nearly nine out of 10 smokers starting by age 18, preventing the initiation of smoking among youth is a key element in reducing the overall burden of tobacco use in Kentucky.

Youth can develop cardiovascular disease, smaller lungs that don't function normally, wheezing that can lead to asthma and eventually cellular damage that can lead to cancer, rheu-matoid arthritis, type 2 diabetes and a host of other diseases, according to a news release.

"While we're pleased to see a reduction in youth smoking, it's important to note that we still have too many youth who smoke and others who are exposed to secondhand tobacco smoke," Dr. Stephanie Mayfield, commissioner for DPH and vice chair of kyhealthnow, said in the release.

"The health consequences of smoking are seen throughout many of the diseases impacting Kentuckians.

Smoking cessation could significantly reduce the rates of cancer, cardiovascular and respiratory diseases which are linked to tobacco use."

The youth survey is conducted in Kentucky every other year, on odd-numbered years. The 2013 YRBSS report is available at www.cdc.gov/yrbs.

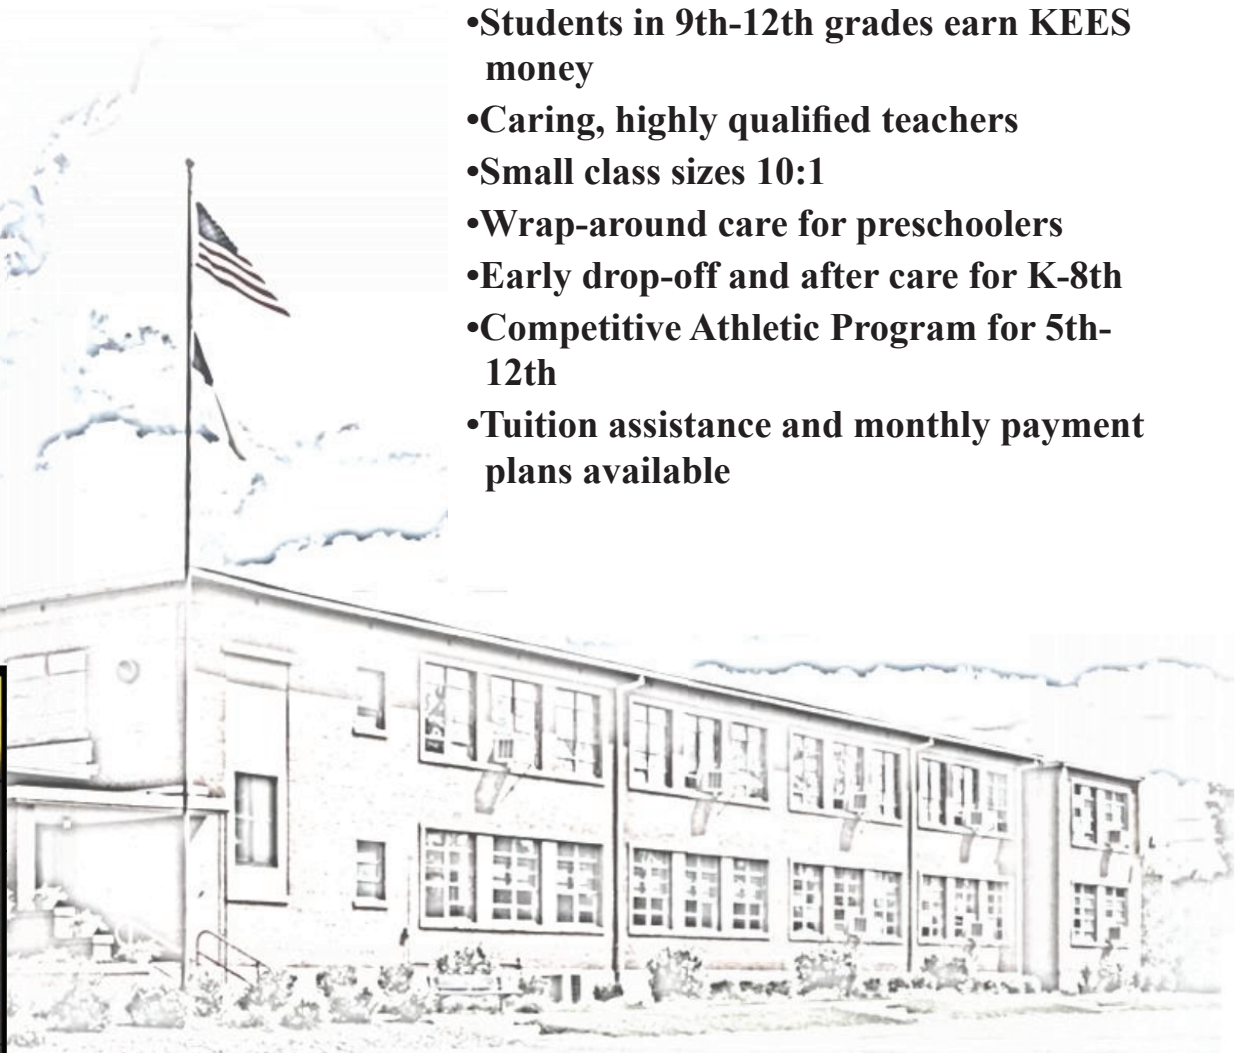

Adults and youth as young as 15 can access the quit coaching services provided through 1-800-QuitNow (1-800-784-8669), or www.QuitNowKentucky.org. The service is free.

Mudcats play well in Smokies

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

The Central Kentucky Mudcats' 17-and-under baseball team took just one of three games during last weekend's Smoky Mountain Classic, held at Smokies Park, near Sevierville, Tennessee.

The tournament, which features some of the best teams from the eastern half of the United States, was played at the home of the Tennessee Smokies, the AA affiliate of the Chicago Cubs. "Overall, it was a good weekend at a great park against some very tough competition," said Mudcat coach Chris Copenhaver.

The Mudcats had planned on playing more games, but rain canceled the rest of the tournament.

Daniel Whalen was outstanding in relief in an 8-7 win over the Yard Dogs from Roanoke, Virginia. Whalen replaced Josh Brown on the mound, getting the win with four stellar innings of work.

"Josh was dominant in the first two innings, but our defense was awful, giving up five unearned runs," Copenhaver said.

Brown struck out six and gave up one earned run in two innings, but Whalen shut the Yard Gogs down, giving up only a run and three hits the rest of the way.

"We had a big come-from-behind victory and we scored four runs in the last two innings," Copenhaver said.

Mason Baker drove in the winning run with an RBI-single to right. Connor Wells went 2-for-3 at the plate to lead the Mudcat attack.

In the Mudcats' final game in Sevierville, Baker was outstanding, but the Mudcat bats were silent in a 3-1 loss to the CTN Thunder, from mid-Tennessee.

"Mason Baker threw seven innings and was magnificent," Copenhaver said. "He gave up two earned runs on four hits and one walk." Baker struck out four.

Baker took a loss because the Mudcats were not able to wake up the bats. The Mudcats managed just five hits with Worth Sparrow driving the Mudcats' only run home with a double.

"It was a well-played game against another good team, but we only had five hits and four of them were singles," Copenhaver said.

In between the Mudcats took a 10-3 whipping from the Tennessee Aces, a team made up of players from three states.

The Mudcats went up 3-0 early but things fell apart in the sixth as the Aces plated 10 runs.

Sparrow had been outstanding, giving up one hit through five innings, but the Aces exploded with seven hits in the sixth.

"Worth was great but they were good and he got tired," Copenhaver said.

Mudcats to host wooden bat tournament this weekend

The Mudcats' 17-and-under team will be hosting their second annual wooden bat classic at Anderson County High School's this weekend.

The complete schedule had not been finalized at press time but Copenhaver said he expects games to be played all day Saturday and Sunday.

The championship game is expected to get underway at approximately 6 p.m. Sunday.

"We are pretty excited because we have a team from New York coming to play," Copenhaver said.

"I like the wood bats much better than the new BBCOR bats. It is much more natural and just seems more like real baseball."

Taking fewer chances for diamond injuries

Anderson coach agrees with KHSAA recommendation

Scary could not do justice to describing that video of Aroldis Chapman falling to the pitcher's mound.

The Cincinnati Reds' relief pitcher had just taken a line drive off the bat of the Kansas City Royals' Salvador Perez during a spring training game in March. Chapman had thrown one of his 100-mph fastballs. Perez connected and the ball hit Chapman in the face. The following day, he had surgery to put a titanium plate in, to repair his shattered eye-socket.

Chapman missed almost six weeks of the current baseball season before the Reds activated him on May 10. He was selected to pitch in last week's All-Star game, retiring the only two batters he faced.

Chapman's injury could happen to anyone playing baseball or softball at the high school level and last week the Kentucky High School Athletic Association's Board of Control recommended that softball pitchers, first basemen and third basemen wear a protective mask while playing in the field.

"No one wants to see a pitcher take shot to the head at any level. Chapman was very fortunate," says Anderson County softball coach Brent Aldridge, a major supporter of the KHSAA's decision.

Anderson County pitcher Mia Aldridge winds up during the Lady Bearcats' game with McCracken County at the state tournament last month. Aldridge started wearing a protective face mask early in her softball career. The KHSAA recommended last week that all pitchers and corner infielders wear the device.

The move stopped short of requiring the masks, but did recommend them. Softball players are already required to wear batting helmets equipped with cages to protect the face.

High school baseball players are not required to wear any kind of facial protection in the field or at bat.

The issue garnered statewide awareness this year after East Jessamine pitcher Haylee Hamm was hit in the face with a batted ball. She returned to action later this spring but her father, East Jessamine coach Tom Hamm, has been trying to raise awareness of the need for the masks.

"I cannot imagine what this poor girl went through but she was extremely lucky," Aldridge said. "I talked to an umpire who was at the game and he said it sounded like a shotgun went off. It makes me cringe just thinking about it."

According to a news release from the KHSAA, the state's governing body for high school sports, "addressed the issue of face/head protection. NFHS Rule 1-8-4 states that defensive players are permitted to wear face/head protection in the field. The Board of Control, based on a proposal from state, a review of available injury data from the NFHS RIO system and the recommendation of the KMA Sports Medicine Advisory Committee, recommended

Former Henry, Oldham boys' coach named to lead Shelby girls

Holland takes over one of Eighth Region favorites

By Josh Cook
Landmark News Service

Jason Holland has already won two Eighth Region basketball titles. He hopes to capture another next season.

"What I want to do is win the Eighth Region," Holland, who guided the Oldham County boys to back-to-back regional championships in 2011-12, said after he was introduced as the new girls' basketball coach at Shelby County High School on Wednesday. "We want to get Shelby County back to where they're used to going, and that's winning the Eighth."

Shelby County last won the region title in 2007, three years before the school "split" (to form Collins High School) decimated the program. The Rockets went 53-55 over the past four seasons - but 50-33 over the last three - including 18-10 last season under Mike Sowers, who resigned last week to take an administrative position at Western Hills.

After suffering only one significant loss to graduation (forward Nikki Simmons), Shelby County should return its top four scorers - Mackenzie Raizor, Justus Martin, Savannah Raizor and Katie Hudgens - and top three rebounders - Martin and the Raizors - from a team that advanced to the region tournament for the first time since 2010. The Rockets fell 78-73 in overtime to Gallatin County in the first round of the region tourney in early March.

"I think we have a chance to compete for the Eighth," Holland said.

An opportunity to coach, what he called "one of the best girls' programs [in the state]," as well as his daughter, lured Holland to Shelby County. His daughter, Zoey, will be an eighth-grader at Shelby East Middle.

New Shelby County girls' basketball coach Jason Holland

"She's one of the reasons why I explored this other side [of coaching]," he said.

Holland, 39 and a graduate of Red Bird High School and Berea College, had significant success as a boys' coach over the past 10 seasons in Kentucky (he also was the head coach at a school in Florida for one season before that), going 184-117 at Henry, Oldham and, most recently, Montgomery counties and winning those aforementioned region titles.

This past season, his only one at Montgomery, he guided the Indians to a 29-3 record before resigning in the spring. Montgomery ranked 15th in the state in scoring last season, but in the past Holland has built his reputation as a defensive-minded coach (his 2011-12 Oldham County team allowed only 45.5 points per game to its opponents). He'll bring that same defensive philosophy to Shelby County.

"We're going to play multiple defenses," he said.

Meanwhile on the offensive end, Holland said, "We're going to get our good players the ball in the places that they can be successful."

Holland has successfully sent 13 former player onto college and hopes to continue that trend at Shelby County.

Farmboy J.D. Shelburne recalls his playing days, lessons learned on hardwood driving his ascent in country music

I'd driven through the backroads to meet up with J.D. Shelburne.

He'd done the same to catch up with a writer he knew little about.

But that wasn't really that unusual. I'm a sports writer who's just as comfortable talking about cattle as baseball. Shelburne could fill the nets from 3-point land at Spencer County High School but is now working his way up the ladder in Nashville.

We're talking Music City. And the base rung of that ladder has to be his biggest single to date, "Farmboy" which tells the story of how he grew up.

The signature line is all you need to know: I'm a farmboy 'til the day that I die.

I had meandered down Highway 44 through Taylorsville, where the video for his hit was filmed on the family farm. He'd taken time out between shows to meet in the parking lot at Bullitt East High School, where Shelburne's father, David, had at one time coached basketball.

J.D. Shelburne might be chasing his dream picking a guitar but it's easy to see why opposing coaches, including Anderson County's Glen Drury, worried about the 6-foot-5-inch shooting guard's touch from 3-point land from 1998-2001.

"We made plenty of trips to Anderson County," Shelburne chuckles. "Man, their fans were rough!"

"Some of my greatest memories are growing up and playing sports around the Eighth Region. It was great growing up in a small town. Everybody knew me and everybody knew my dad."

Opposing coaches knew him too.

Full racing program added at Ponderosa

From staff reports

After a couple of weekends off and a pair of weekend rainouts, Ponderosa Speedway will return to action with a full program of racing action that has been added to the schedule on Friday, July 25.

Originally scheduled as an off weekend, Ponderosa Speedway will now present a full program of racing competition on Friday. Also on this card will be the make-up feature events for the Modified and Sportsman divisions that were rained out on June 27. Also, the 14th Annual Hugh "Junebug" Rowland Memorial event that was rained out on July 18 and again on July 19 will now take place on Friday August 1, with Super Late Models racing for $3,000 to win.

Friday's racing program will feature a full program of racing in all divisions, with Super Late Models racing 25 laps for $1,000 to win, along with Modifieds racing for $700 to win in their 20-lap feature contest. Also on the docket will be Pro Late Models racing in a 20-lap feature contest for $600 to win and Sportsman racing for $300 to win in a 15-lap feature event.

The general admission area and pit area open at 4:00 p.m. Practice laps are set to begin at 7:20 p.m. Time trials will get underway at 7:45 p.m., with racing set to take the green flag at 8:30 p.m. Ticket prices in the general admission area will be $15 for adults, with children ages 12 and under admitted free with a paid adult, while a pit pass will be $30.

Ponderosa Speedway last raced on Friday, June 27 and feature event winners that evening included Michael Chilton of Salvisa in Super Late Models and Elliott Despain of Campbellsville in Pro Late Models.

Ponderosa Speedway is located at 365 Phillips Lane on the Boyle/Lincoln County line, outside of Junction City.

KDFWR completes drawing for elk hunting permits

From staff reports

Those drawn for a 2014 Kentucky elk hunt can now go online to www.fw.ky.gov to see their assigned hunting area, according to a news release.

Kentucky's popular quota elk hunts are carried out in two stages: initial selection then a second random drawing to determine the hunting area.

Kentucky has five hunting areas within its 16-county elk restoration zone in the southeastern part of the state.

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is sending letters to hunters this week to notify each person of their assigned hunting area.

Hunters may also go online to check this information.

Applicants must provide their 19-digit confirmation number or their Social Security number and birth date to check the assignment.

Kentucky Fish and Wildlife is issuing 1,000 general quota hunt permits this year, along with 10 youth-only permits.

Archery season for bull elk opens Sept. 20. Firearms seasons for bull elk are held in October while firearms seasons for cow elk are held in December.

Kentucky's elk population is the nation's largest east of the Rocky Mountains.

Future stars shine at Lady Cat camp that players at first base, third base and pitcher utilize the permissive requirement in the play-ing rules and wear face/head protection.”

The release also notes that the KHSAA proposed requiring the use of headgear, but the NFHS rules committee voted not to accept the proposal.

Aldridge believes the recommendation is a good one. He’s long been an advocate of the devices and his daugh-ter, Mia, wears one while she is working in the pitcher’s circle.

“Mia started wearing a mask in (8-and-under) softball. Keith Curr-ens (one of her coaches) and I thought it was in all players best interest to do so,” Aldridge says.

The Anderson coach, who led the Lady Bearcats to the state tournament last month, says the masks have evolved and are now just as much a part of many players gear as a glove.

“They used to be plastic but now they make some really nice metal ones,” Aldridge says. (Anderson players) Autumn Beasley, Kaci Curr-ens and Mia have become so used to wear-ing them, it is a habit.”

Aldridge says there are objections, but he believes those objec-tions are nonsense. “You will hear from some, ‘It affects their vision’ but that is gar-bage. Kelsey Nunley (a pitcher who led the University of Kentucky to the Women’s College World Series) wears one and she is a Division I athlete.”

The move by the KHSAA is just another one in the direction of player safety. The ball flies off a metal bat, which are used in soft-ball, much faster than a wood bat. When a pitcher winds up, she is 43 feet from home plate, but the release point puts the pitcher no more than 37 or 38 feet from the plate.

Corner infielders are also at increased risk in softball because of the prevalence of bunts and slap-hitting that can put those infielders as close to the batter as the pitcher.

“I think anything that helps protect kids is a good thing,” Aldridge said. “The game is changing so drasti-cally every day--kids are becoming stronger, equipment is improv-ing and the speed of the game is different.

“Ninety-nine percent of the time it is a non-issue but if you have ever seen a pitcher or a fielder take a shot to the face, it will turn your stomach.”

Still, Aldridge agrees with the KHSAA in ul-timately leaving the deci-sion with the girl and her parents.

“Several kids are uncomfortable wearing mask and I know a few coaches that will not allow their kids to wear them,” Aldridge said. “I would not be opposed seeing all infielders wear them but I cannot force them to do so, but I will never discourage a kid from wearing one and will support them doing so.

“I firmly believe KHSAA should have stepped up but I also understand they can-not force kids to wear them. Honestly, it is a parent decision and my daughter is wearing one anytime she is in the infield.”

Shelburne

of the state’s top 3-point shooters and at one point, sank 33 straight free throws.

He looks like he could still make some, ahem, string music. “I will lace up the old basket-ball shoes and play at the Brent-wood (Tenn.) YMCA from time to time,” Shelburne says. “It’s a great way to stay in shape these days.”

And it’s not surprising that a guy who grew up loving the Cincinnati Reds of Chris Sabo and Barry Larkin always remem-bers the day he and his younger brother, Tommy, went deep. “I think we were playing Shelby County and both of us hit home runs in the same game. That was the coolest thing ever.”

To music and Wildcat lovers, though, Shelburne’s ascent rivals that feat on the coolness scale.

It all started in the summer of 2002, between Shelburne’s fresh-man and sophomore years at the University of Kentucky.

“My grandmother passed away. She went to sleep one night and never woke up. It was kind of a shock for our family,” he says. “It really took its toll on the family. We would go to her house that summer and box up stuff and the antiques.

“In the back of a closet, I found an acoustic guitar that I never knew was there. ... I just thought it would be something fun to do. I was retiring from sports and moving on to the next phase in my life.

“When I went back to Lexing-ton for the fall semester in ‘02, I took the guitar with me. Over the course of the next six months, I would get on Google and just try to start figuring out where to put my fingers on the guitar. The case had a chord book in it that told where to put my fingers and I would just play to what was playing on the radio.”

Eventually, he literally sang for his supper.

“I got to where I was halfway decent and would go down the street to this place where I would sing for a chicken sandwich,” he laughs.

He started playing coffee shops, churches and retirement parties. He even played for tips near Freddy Farm Bureau at the Kentucky State Fair one year.

“I made about three bucks in two hours,” Shelburne laughs.

It was all part of the dream that had moved from Riverfront Stadium to the Grand Ole Opry.

“Anything I could do to get out and be seen. Anything with a P.A., I would go play it,” he says with a laugh. “I have played in nursing homes where every patient was asleep. I have liter-ally done it all. We have done it the old-fashioned way. I tell people we have done it Loretta Lynn-style.”

modern twist of Twitter and Facebook

And that is where his love of Kentucky basketball and coun-try music came together.

It all came together on March 30 when the Wildcats earned a berth in the Final Four in Arlington, Texas. Freshman reserve Marcus Lee was the sur-prise scoring 10 points and grab-bing eight rebounds.

“I was sitting in the recliner and my heart was pounding. I said, ‘I am gonna have to write a song about this,’” Shelburne says.

He decided on re-wording the Alabama hit, “If You’re Gonna Play in Texas, You’ve Gotta Have a Fiddle in the Band.”

In 10 minutes, Shelburne had come up with, “If You’re Gonna Play in Texas, You’ve Gotta have Lee in the Game.” He loaded on his Facebook page.

“I did it as a joke, hoping to get some tickets to the game,” he chuckles. “My dad called me and said that was a good song on Facebook and I had some com-ments on it. About three hours later, I had about 5,000 views and 3,000 shares. The next day, it was like 200,000 likes. It went viral.”

At last count, over the quickly-made “joke” has turned in seri-ous numbers to the tune of over 450,000 views in various ways.

Ironically, Shelburne says he has been able to play more events around the University of Louisville - “Tom Jurich is a fan,” he says of the Cardinals’ athletic director - than his alma mater.

And, it was in the former home of Cardinal football that Shelburne saw another of his dreams come true last year. His gigs at the Kentucky State Fair had evolved from that day he stood near Freddy Farm Bureau to playing one of the country music tents. Last spring, the call came to open for fellow Kentuck-ians Montgomery Gentry at Car-dinal Stadium during the fair.

The place was packed and rocking.

“I remember one year walking back to my car and seeing (Chris-tian group) Mercy Me playing and I said, ‘I want to play here some day. Sure enough, six years later, I was doing it.”

The dream is still big, but Shelburne is still climbing. By day, he works as a workman’s compensation adjuster. At night and on weekends, he’s traveling to play.

Even though he has opened for 44 national acts, Shelburne longs to play the Opry - another Kentuckian, singer Steve War-ner, has written a letter of recommendation for him - and open for some other big names, including the Oak Ridge Boys, a favorite of Shelburne’s parents and the writer he spent part of a Saturday afternoon with in a small town talking about sports and being farm boys.

“You make so many friends along the way playing sports from grade school to high school, that I still keep in contact with,” Shelburne says. “I learned so much about being humble, learning to play with a positive mind frame, never giving up on dreams and always give 110 per-cent effort.

“(Spencer coach Mike) Appel-man always taught us to leave it all out on the floor and I use that same mind frame today when I perform shows. I leave it all on the stage at the end of the night.

“I worked on a farm all my life. We raised tobacco. I put in hay. A lot of people don’t realize I am a farm boy. I have my hair slicked back, wear tight blue jeans and cowboy boots, but I was born and raised on the farm. I was driving a truck on the back road when I was eight years old.”

I’m a farmboy until the day that I die.

Anderson’s Drury remembers trying to stop J.D. Shelburne

Early in our 30-minute interview, J.D. Shelburne started reminiscing about his days playing basketball for Spencer County High School. During his three seasons at Spencer, the Bears fell on hard times, going 22-55 from 1999-2001, according to the KHSAA website.

However, in Shelburne’s senior year, the only one with stats available on KHSAA.org, the future country star did his best to carry the team. In the 2000-2001 season, Shelburne hit 56 three-point shots in 27 games. He hit 32.2 percent of his bomb attempts.

Shelburne was listed on the Spencer statis-tics page as John D. Shelburne.

“Does Coach (Glen) Drury still coach at Anderson County?” Shelburne asked. “I remember playing against Anderson County. They were tough, and their fans, oh man, they were rough.”

When told that Drury was also a fan of J.D. Shelburne and had even attended one of his concerts, Shelburne smiled broadly. “He is a great coach,” Shelburne said.

It has been almost 14 years since Shel-burne put on the No. 34 jersey for Spencer County, but Drury also remembers some of his exploits. “I remember he was a very good player,” Drury said. “We keyed on stopping him.”

Shelburne says Anderson County burgoo was ‘Awesome’ but stage was an adventure

Long before J.D. Shelburne had become almost a household name in Kentucky music circles, he made an unforgettable stop in Lawrenceburg.

“I headlined the Burgoo Festival in 2008,” he says with a laugh.. “I played on a stage that was really a wagon. Every time we moved, it seemed like the stage moved too.

“Someone told me that if I was going to play at the Burgoo Festival, I would have to eat some of the burgoo. So I did. They brought it to me in a little styrofoam cup. It was like souped up beef stew. It was awesome!”

Shelburne to host softball game, play Fourth Street Live next weekend

J.D. Shelburne, whose second CD is due out Aug. 23, is scheduled to play Fourth Street Live in Louisville on Friday, Aug. 1. “The last three years, I have opened for a Kentucky Derby show on Fourth Street Live,” he says. “They called and I had another commitment but I changed it to be able to make it work.

The following day, Shelburne will play host to his annual charity softball game to benefit St. Jude Research Hospital. It will be the seventh year Shelburne has returned home to Taylorsville for the event. The game will get underway at Ray Jewell Park at 1 p.m. on Aug. 2 with a home run derby at 11 a.m.

“Anyone can enter. It is a $5 entry fee,” Shelburne says. “Come one, come all.”

All proceeds go to the hospital and checks should be made to St. Jude Children’s Research Hospital.

4 1/2 to 1

61% of Kentuckians say newspapers are their primary source for advertising information.

13% mentioned another medium.

That's a 4 1/2-to-1 advantage for newspapers.

If it were a basketball game, you'd be leaving at half-time.

It's all right here. In the newspaper.

This fact brought to you by the Kentucky Press Association and its 162 member newspapers.

LEGAL NOTICES

A PROPOSED ORDINANCE RELATING TO THE AMENDMENT OF THE ANDERSON COUNTY ZONE ORDINANCE AND MAP ORDINANCE NO. 2014-4 SUMMARY

Be it ordained by the Anderson Fiscal Court, Commonwealth of Kentucky:

SECTION I
The Anderson Fiscal Court has considered the record before the Lawrenceburg/Anderson County, Kentucky Joint Planning Commission in its Docket 14-005 including the record of the public hearing held by the Planning Commission and its staff as set out in the minutes of its May 13, 2014 meeting. The Anderson Fiscal Court concurs in and adopts the reasons and findings of the Planning Commission for said zoning change and approves and accepts the recommendations of the Commission in this matter as set out in its minutes.

SECTION II
More specifically, the Anderson Fiscal Court concurs in the findings of the Planning Commission and adopts said findings as its own.

SECTION III
Therefore, the Zoning Map of Anderson County, Kentucky is hereby amended as it affects the property described herein from A-1 (Agricultural District) to R-1 (Single Family Residential District). The property so rezoned is owned by Robert Drury, 108 Buckingham Drive, Bardstown, Kentucky. The subject property, containing 1.9 acres, is situated at the northeast end of Virginia Avenue, approximately 1/3 mile from the intersection of Virginia Avenue and Salt River Road, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky.

This ordinance shall be effective from and after its passage, approval, attestation, and publication as required by law.

Given first reading on the 1st day of July 2014.

Published in the Anderson News on the 23rd day of July 2014.

Scheduled for second reading by the Fiscal Court of Anderson County, Kentucky, to be held on the 5th day of August, 2014 at 10 a.m. at the Anderson County Fiscal Court, 137 South Main Street, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky.

/s/ John Wayne Conway
Anderson County Judge/Executive
ATTEST: Jason Denny,
Anderson County Clerk

ORDINANCE NO. 2014-6 AN ORDINANCE RELATING TO THE ADOPTION OF AN INTERLOCAL AGREEMENT FOR COLLECTION OF BUSINESS LICENSE FEES IN ANDERSON COUNTY

WHEREAS, the Anderson County Fiscal Court enacted Ordinance No. 2013-01, providing for the imposition of business license fees in Anderson County, Kentucky, (which modified certain provisions of the prior Ordinance of the Anderson County Fiscal Court (Ordinance No. 2011-02); and;

WHEREAS, the provisions of Ordinance No. 2011-02, as modified in Ordinance No. 2013-01, provided for the Anderson County Sheriff to collect the business license fees imposed by the ordinance; and;

WHEREAS, the provisions of the Ordinance further provided a sharing of the collected revenues between Anderson County Fiscal Court and the Anderson County Sheriff; and;

WHEREAS, KRS 65.245 provides that a fiscal court may by ordinance enter into cooperative interlocal agreements for the sharing of revenues," and that a sheriff, upon approval of the fiscal court . . . may enter into a memorandum of agreement with local governments for the purposes of sharing revenues."

WHEREAS, KRS 65.245 further provides that "the distribution of the revenues shall be as agreed upon by the local governments or the sheriff and contained in the interlocal agreement.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT ORDAINED AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION I
That the Anderson County Fiscal Court and the Anderson County Sheriff shall enter into an Interlocal Agreement, approved by the Department for Local Government (DLG), for the "sharing of revenues" associated with the collection of business license fees in Anderson County.

SECTION II
This Ordinance shall be effective from and after its passage, approval and attestation and publication as required by law.

GIVEN FIRST READING at a duly convened meeting of the Anderson County Fiscal Court, Anderson County, Kentucky, held on the 1st day of July, 2014.

Published in The Anderson News on July 23, 2014.

SCHEDULED FOR SECOND READING, by the Fiscal Court of Anderson County Fiscal Court, 137 South Main Street, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky on August 5, 2014 @ 10 a.m.

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE

In order to comply with the orders of the Anderson Circuit Court, the Master Commissioner will sell the property described in the following actions on Wednesday, July 30, 2014, at 11:00 a.m. in the Anderson County Courthouse, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky. The property shall be sold to raise the amounts hereinafter set forth, together with interest and the costs of this action, and upon the following terms and conditions (unless otherwise indicated):

(1) At the time of the sale, the successful bidder shall either pay cash or make a deposit of ten percent (10%) of the purchase price, with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days. In the event the successful bidder elects to credit the balance, he or she will be required to post bond and furnish surety acceptable to the Master Commissioner. The bond shall be for the unpaid purchase price and bear interest and the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum until paid in full.

(2) PLEASE NOTE: The real estate SHALL BE SOLD SUBJECT TO ALL city, state, county, and school real estate taxes, whether current or delinquent.

(3) Easements, restrictions, stipulations and agreements of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office. Assessments for public improvements levied against the property, any facts which an inspection and accurate survey of the property may disclose and any and all planning and zoning regulations imposed upon the subject property

(4) Where the real estate has insurable improvements, the successful bidder shall, at his or her own expense, carry fire and extended coverage insurance on said improvements from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid, to the extent of the Court appraised value of said improvements or the unpaid balance of the purchase price, whichever is less, at a minimum, with a loss clause payable to the Master Commissioner or the appropriate Plaintiff. Failure of the successful bidder to effect such insurance shall not affect the validity of the sale or the successful bidder's liability thereunder, but shall entitle, but not require, the Plaintiff(s) to effect said insurance and furnish the policy or evidence thereof to the Master Commissioner, if it so desires, and the premium thereon or the property portion thereof shall be charged to the successful bidder as the successful bidder's cost.

(5) The property shall otherwise be sold free and clear of any right, title and interest of all parties to the action and of their liens and encumbrances thereon excepting easements and restrictions of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office, and such right of redemption which may exist in favor of the United States of America or the Defendant(s), and any matters disclosed by an accurate survey and inspection of the property.

HOROSCOPES

A coworker has something to share with you. Be attentive Capricorn. Brilliance comes when you need it most. A mystery is solved at home.

You may not be able to turn back the hands of time, but you can keep them at bay with some lifestyle changes. Start small, Aries.

You can run, but you cannot hide, Cancer. Fess up and face the consequences. A challenge at home proves worthwhile. A deadline is extended.

Work takes a back seat to love this week, Libra. Clear your schedule and plan a little getaway. A financial risk is worth taking. Seize the

A health condition improves with changes in dietary habits. Good job, Aquarius. A home improvement proposal deserves a second look.

A special event draws near. Relax, Taurus. You will rise to the occasion. Email correspondence settles a debate once and for all.

Storms are brewing at home. Take cover, Leo. This is one battle you do not want to fight. A glowing review deserves a night on the town.

Slow down, Scorpio. You are so busy trying to accomplish the impossible that you are missing out on the big picture. A loved one shares some news.

Financial burdens ease with a household addition. Good thinking, Pisces. An old friend makes a bombshell announcement. Be Greedy Gemini. That is what you must be this week if you are going to get anything done. You have fulfilled your commit-

Congrats, Virgo. All of your hard work at the office does not go unnoticed. Some people never learn. Try not to be too

Roll out the welcome mat, Sagittarius. Visitors are coming. A party allows you to cut loose and have some fun. A business

That's how many Kentucky adults read a daily, Sunday or weekly newspaper in an average week.

That's more than 5 out of 6 people.

And truth be told, we like to think that 6th person may be listening while one of the other five reads out loud.

This fact brought to you by the Kentucky Press Association and its 162 member newspapers.
